Ruddington Fields

At Ruddington Fields our café serves a selection of hot and cold food and drinks. Our well stocked shop is also full of tempting things for all ages and pockets. Our hugely popular miniature railway provides rides for old and young between attractions at Ruddington, including Railway Workshops, Model Railway, Children's Play Area and Road Transport displays courtesy of Nottingham Area Bus Society.

About your Journey

Our on-train buffet car also serves a selection of snacks and hot and cold drinks for you to enjoy whilst you travel through the picturesque South Nottinghamshire countryside.

The journey from Ruddington to Rushcliffe Halt passes through Gotham Moor, with views across to Ratcliffe Power station and the ridge of hills between the Moor and the Trent valley.

After crossing Fairham brook, our line climbs towards the village of East Leake. Rushcliffe Halt station (named after the adjacent golf club), is at the edge of the village. Usually sleepy, the station really comes alive on gala days as all trains cross here on their way north and south.

East Leake (Rushcliffe Halt)

Leaving Rushcliffe Halt, the line continues to climb through the village of East Leake. The village sports good pubs and restaurants, along with village shops and a vibrant community. The former station here near the centre of the village is proposed for re-opening for passengers on-foot.

The cutting immediately north of the platform is a butterfly refuge, and the line continues its climb to a short tunnel marking the top of the ridge before continuing into the picturesque Soar Valley towards Loughborough.

As the line drops southwards towards Loughborough, it hugs the ridge forming the eastern side of the wide Soar Valley. From Barnstone Tunnel southwards, passengers can glimpse the town of Loughborough nestling in the valley, though the line makes a sweeping series of "S" curves as it drops in height, before bursting into the valley proper at Stanford-on-Soar, crossing the river on an impressive brick-arch viaduct. Passing the works of Brush (famous for building locomotives), our line ends on the north-easterly side of the town, adjacent to the Midland Mainline. With the dawn of a new era for the GCRN and GCR, including the bridge over the Midland Mainline which is due to be installed during mid 2015, your journey will soon continue into Loughborough Central Station and beyond.
